1 of 1 review helpful An Archaeological Study of Rural Capitalism and Material Life The Gibbs Farmstead in Southern Appalachia By V Sagadraca I am primarily interested in the Gibbs Family History therefore have a unique position The archaeology terminology and study methods were not as critical to me but were understandable Historical archaeology has largely focused on the study of early military sites and homes of upper class Research on lower classes was viewed as a supplement to local histories documenting political military and financial leaders of the 18th and 19th centuries An Archaeological Study of Rural Capitalism and Material Life will be of interest to historical archaeologists cultural anthropologists social historians and historical sociologists From the reviews In many respects this is an impressive and groundbreaking study I have read very few other analyses that have so effectively used unremarkable farmsteads to say something remarkable about historical processes in the U S Groover s method
